PONY POLO TO BE INTRODUCED

en with the mallets and the skill is shown in the different positions from which these strokes are made. The players wear white riding breeches, polo boots of russet leather, silk tunics in the colors of their club, and a white helmet having a steel cap, which prevents anyone receiving a scalp wound while in the game. This steel cap has prevented many players from losing their lives, as a stroke from the mallet is delivered with great force.

Will Be Success Here. "I am sure polo can be made a success in El Paso," Dr. Edmunds said. "There are enough good riders here who will soon develop into good polo players, that there should be no trouble in arranging for a series of fast tournament games here during the fair. Two men that I have spoken to since I came here have told me that they had played the game and as I would play with the team if it is organized, there would be only one additional player to be developed. Another team should be organized to play the first team, which would also arrange games with outside teams to be played here. I like El Paso and expect to locate here with my family, and as I am always interested in the game, which has been my life hobby, I hope to be able to start it here."

Dr. Edmunds expects to remain here several days after returning to his polo ranch at Wilcox, Arizona, where he will arrange his business affairs to come to El Paso.

First game of the series went to Boston at Detroit Monday. Mullen was wild and poorly supported.

By a shutout New York cleaned up the series with Boston Monday. It was a four run one.

Only four teams remain in the Western association. President J. H. Shaw Monday ordered the disbandment of two clubs on account of poor attendance.

Opening of the Detroit Driving club's 25th annual blue ribbon meet, which covers the second week of the Grand Circuit season, was favored Monday with racing conditions little short of ideal. Fast time was made in all the events and the 2:05 pace brought out the two fastest heats of the year.

Coincident with the arrival of the first of the month among the working element of the El Paso, business in the local police court has picked up to such an extent, that the daily dispensation of justice there the past few days, has made that the busiest spot in the city. Most of the offenders are Mexicans, but a fair proportion of those arraigned have been Americans. Officers have been kept busy responding to calls night and day, and up to the present time there has been no let up.

Two Irishmen—and they were Irish through and through—were the most interesting characters in police court Tuesday morning. Mike Murphy and James Regan were the names they gave. "Jim" was a hard of hearing and judge Lee's lungs were given exercise of unwanted violence during the session with the prisoners. Jim also had a "game" leg, two inches shorter than it ought to be, and in his earnest plea to the judge, walked over to a sergeant and offered it for examination. The sergeant declined to make the examination.
